TUESDAY EVENING, DEC. 7. 1886.

TEN prisoners were sent to the penitentiary from Louisville Saturday. Altogether the ten are to serve the State sixty years.

A DISPATCH from Washington, D. C., says: "Sam Walton has concluded not to accept the Asuncion Consulate, and will now try for a chief of division in one of the Departments."

The Court of Appeals has affirmed the decision of the Circuit Court of Louisville in the case of Melvin Butler convicted of the murder of John B. Macoy last January. Butler's sentence was for twenty-one years in the penitentiary.

The Auditor's report puts the tobacco crop of this State at 226,147,027 pounds in 1884 and 254,173,682 pounds in 1885, an increase of more than 28,000,000 pounds. Mason stands fifth in the list of tobacco-growing counties, while Graves leads the list.

The party who attempted to assassinate Howard Logan recently at Morehead is not connected with all the Toller faction according the latest news. The Mt. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat has learned that a "woman is at the bottom of the trouble."

"JIM CUMMINGS," the alleged Adams express robber, has not only renewed his literary labors, but is engaged in making good his claims as a bad man. The Globe Democrat has received from him a letter offering to give up $25,000 of the stolen money if the authorities will call off their detectives. The other day at Parsons, Kansas, Jim Cummings stole a hotel keeper's hat, a policeman and retreated in good order. Have we another Jesse James, or are the cranks combined to make fictitious Jim Cummings a very Cagliostro of villainous tricks and escapades?—Louisville Times.

STATE GEOLOGIST PROCTOR, who has just returned from an extended ride through the mountains of Southeastern Kentucky, says there is great improvement in Southeast Kentucky, particularly the Cumberland Valley, in which he noted a large number of new houses and the building of a great many more, which are decidedly superior to anything formerly found in that portion of the State. He also reports a marked decrease of in-temperance and increase of the industrial habits of the people. There was not a season to be seen on a journey of four hundred miles.—Exchange.

The New Revenue Law.

In a circular, announcing his candidacy for re-election as Auditor of State, Gen. Fayette Hewitt says of the new Revenue law: "It will place the Treasury in an improved condition. Our school fund will be enlarged, teachers will be paid promptly and claimants need no longer be compelled to wait on the State for their just dues. We will be once more on a cash footing. In doing so, taxation will be more equitably distributed.

A large class of property, which before escaped taxation, will be brought to the light and made to contribute its quota of taxes. The burden will no longer fall on the agricultural class and the small property holder. At the same time the rate of taxation is reduced. Last year it was 62 cents; this year it is 51 cents, and for 1887 it will be 47 cents, and a further reduction can be recommended to the next Legislature."

A Heavy Tax Suit.

The Court of Appeals made an important ruling last week. The State will realize about $60,000 in taxes as a result of the suit, if the case is not taken to the United States Court and the decision reversed. In addition to this, the ruling of the court will form a strong precedent in hundreds of other cases throughout the State. The decision was rendered in the case of C. E. Baldwin vs. M. T. Shine, Judge of Kenton County Court, and H. P. Whittaker, Auditor's agent. The petition recited that the proceedings were had in the County Court of Kenton County before the defendant Shine, upon the information of H. P. Whittaker, Auditor's agent, for the purpose of assessing the estate of R. B. Bowler, deceased, subject to taxation in Kentucky from January 10, 1866, to January 10, 1882, inclusive, which came into the hands of E. G. Baldwin as administrator. It was conceded in the argument that R. B. Bowler, at the time of his death, was domiciled in the State of Ohio; that he never was a resident of Kentucky, notwithstanding nearly all his wealth was in the State of Kentucky and protected by the laws of said State. He died in 1884, and George H. and Elliott Pendleton qualified soon thereafter in Ohio and took charge of the estate in Ohio, which consisted of 20 bonds of the Covington and Lexington railroad and a loan by Bowler of $250,000.

to said railroad company, and these are two of the sums which came into the hands of Baldwin in Kentucky as administrator, and which the Auditor's agent claimed were subject to taxation in Kentucky. In one settlement made with the County Court in 1868, the estate was shown to be worth $563,189.77. In 1881 it was valued at more than $2,000,000, and in 1882 at $17,582. The administrator claimed the estate was not subject to taxation in Kentucky, as it belonged to heirs in Ohio, and that furthermore at no time was he ever called upon by any Assessor in Kentucky to list the property for taxation. The County Court decided in favor of the Auditor's agent, and was about to enforce its judgment by a rule against Baldwin, when he applied to the Kenton Chancery Court for an injunction. In February, 1884, the latter court, after granting a temporary injunction, dissolved it, when Baldwin excepted and prayed an appeal.

Judge Holt, who delivered the opinion of the Appellate Court, ruled:

"That an assessment of a delinquent by the County Court is a ministerial act; that the action of a County Court upon an information to assess a delinquent is not a judicial but a ministerial act, and, therefore, not a bar to a second one; that although an estate consists of personalty, it is not personalty, but property entitled to it are non-residents, yet that the legal title to the Kentucky administrator, it is liable to taxation here; and that the fact that he had settled his accounts and made distribution before filing of the information did not release him from the tax, which was assessable as of a certain day, and the liability then becomes fixed."

FORTY-NINTH CONGRESS.

BOTH BRANCHES OF THE LEGISLATURE AGAIN IN SESSION.

Scenes in the Capitol on the Assembling of the Last Session of the Forty-Ninth Congress—Proceedings of the Senate and House—The Reading of the Message.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The scenes usually incident to the assembling of congress at the beginning of a session were early inaugurated at the capitol. By 10 o'clock people began to flock into the galleries of the house, the favorite resort whenever there are important meetings or debates in progress in congress. At 11 o'clock the galleries were half full, and as the intervening hours to the opening were away, they were filled to overflowing. Members flocked into the hall of the house of representatives very slowly, and stood around with their arms akimbo, waiting to find their respective opponents, how they "made it," or "got left" in the recent campaign and election.

The stories were interesting, and at times thrilling, as the narrative was handed down into each other's ear, some romances, but no humor unseemly. Those who were defeated for re-election declared that they were glad to retire from public life, and those re-elected were thanking friends for congratulations.

The most characteristic scene of the assembly was the hand-wringing despair about the gallery railings in memory of the late Senator Pike and ex-President Arthur. A much smaller crowd of visitors lingered over the floor, where the bluster and argument occurred.

Only one committee has been in session besides the house committee on appropriations, and that was the joint conference in the interstate commerce bill. The members of the committee who were called to meet the Senate last week, the Senate adjourned at 1:30 o'clock to Wednesday morning, when the only point of importance not determined will be settled that of court jurisdiction. If it is determined that the interstate commerce roads can be brought in state courts they will be given jurisdiction; otherwise, only federal courts will have jurisdiction.

Chairman Curtis will have a meeting of his committee on the southwest road bill to-morrow, when some formal plan for drawing up the report will be agreed upon.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Senator Sherman called the senate to order and Rev. J. J. Butler read the prayer. After a short debate the departmental bills were referred to the Senate Committee, which was appointed to notify the house that the senate was in session and to wait upon the president. Messrs. Edmunds and Sabinson were designated to perform the duty. Senator Williams' credentials were presented by his colleague. Senator Stanford, and he was sworn in. Bills and petitions were introduced to fortify Florida railroad land grants, to authorize bridges across the Mississippi, and to prohibit the sale of timber taken east of 2 o'clock, when the message was received and its reading begun.

The reading of the message was finished at 8:25, when it and accompanying documents were referred to the Senate.

Mr. Blair announced the death of his late colleague, Mr. Pike, and on motion the senate, as a mark of respect to his memory, adjourned.

House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The speaker called the house to order at noon, and Captain Milburn delivered the prayer. The roll was called and 241 members responded. The senate was informed that the house was ready for business. Messrs. Reagan, Breckinridge, of Kentucky, and Reed were designated to call the Senate to order, to notify the president that the house awaited his pleasure. Messrs. S. S. Cox and Henry Barnard, of New York, and Henry W. Rush, of Maryland, were sworn in as members. The house took a recess until 2 o'clock, when the message was received and read.

A condition of business exists in both houses, which under ordinary circumstances, would be conducive to disorder and a general scramble for precedence. Neither of the preceding officers or any of the leaders in either branch have any definite idea as to the real order of business during the week, while a number of gentlemen are determined to secure consideration of various measures, if possible, before the first Monday of the month it was anticipated that individuals.

Mr. Hiscott's idea was that he would wait, if opportunity existed upon continuing his motion and occupy the floor, but he recognized that his motion will have to go over again, and that the house would then have to take some action which would impede his measure which he desires to pass, provides that all leaf tobacco imported in bales, etc., shall pay a duty of one dollar a pound if stemmed, and seventy-five cents a pound if unstemmed, and is known as the Summarum tobacco bill.

When the house meets on Tuesday, the special orders on the calendar will come up unless motions to suspend the rules prevent them from being voted on. The members who are liable to be passed to the front, among them the free ship bill, the electoral count, Oklahoma, Thurman's railroad bill, the increase of the army, etc. There are also several associations, which are to be considered, and as there are to encounter the least antagonism, a motion to suspend the rules and consider them may prevail. It is believed that the month will be occupied by the house in the consideration of special orders, two or three of the appropriative bills will be reported by Saturday, the sunnary civil bill being promised by Friday.

The senate will have a number of executive bills to consider, and the field will be open for a number of referenda presidential bills to committees, and there will be no time taken upon them for some time, nor until they have been matured in committees and reported back to the floor.

Several working days will elapse from the time the congress convenes until the term expires. After deducting two weeks, which are usually taken for the holidays, sixty-two working days remain. There are four working days remaining to be used before March 4, and as it is not likely that more than one or two of any will go to the senate before the second week in January, it being promised by Friday.

can be had for $1.00. The other legislation is to be enacted, and the bills may be referred to the Senate for consideration before the fall or spring session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The annual report of Daniel Manning, secretary of the treasury, has been given to the public. It is a lengthy document, the main points of which, however, may be presented briefly as follows:

"To stop the purchase of silver is our only choice, our duty and our interest."

"It will stop a wasteful and injurious expense, and the taxation which defrays it."

"It will command and promote reform in the sun and the methods of Federal taxation."

"It will recover to the United States an equality of position (non-coining) with foreign powers, which will give us due influence in the world."

"It will induce negotiation, and negotiation is the end of relief, not for the purpose of delay."

Stopping the purchase and coining of silver is the first step, and the best which we can take to stop the drain of our resources to repair the monetary dislocation of the world. Its origin was foreign; its remedy is international. The time is ripe for this powerful remedy, and to derive exclusively upon the international transaction. The time must not be let slip.

It remains to consider the reduction of taxation to the states of the government economically administered. It is my belief that the removal of the shackles of war taxes on raw materials such increased prosperity will follow to the employers who dread it, and such large and steady employment to the wage-earners who need it, by increasing the state share of our national product. In competition with foreign competitors in our own markets, that we shall see our income from imported manufacturers dwindle fast, not only to compel the retention of the most fit men of our country, but to do justice to our country, to us, to our sons, and to our daughters."

I respectfully recommend to congress that they consider the wage-earner in the same light as the soldier, and in order thereto, the immediate passage of an act simply and solely placing raw wool upon the free list.

The Senate Civil Bill Completed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The sub-committee of the house committee on appropriations has completed the measure. In appropriations $19,000,000, which is $12,532,000 less than the estimates, $3,650,000 less than the appropriation for the current year, and $2,045,000 less than the aggregate of the appropriations made by the house and Senate to date in the past session. Fourteen members of the committee were present at the meeting this morning. Another meeting will be held this afternoon, and further progress made in the preparation of the sundry civil bill.

The Government Printing Office.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—It is likely that the printing office will be closed for a short time for an appropriation for sometime yet, although the printer Benedict has appeared before the committee on appropriations and urged action on an emergency appropriation. The delay is due to the uncertainty of the treasury not having transmitted his estimates to the committee.

An Opinion of Morrison.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Hon. A. S. Howitt said yesterday that he would urge the consideration of Mr. Morrison's tariff reduction bill. He expressed his opinion that Mr. Morrison's bill was "natural calamity," and hoped that the president would appoint him to some foreign mission or other important office.
